Restoration Temporarily Closes Popular Nevada Trail

Nevada State Parks has recently released a statement regarding the temporary closure of a popular multiple use trail in their jurisdiction. Starting June 1, North Canyon Creek Road will be closed for the first two miles out of the Spooner Lake State Park, Mondays through Thursdays. The meadow restoration and road rehabilitation is projected to wrap up by July 12. Equestrians and hikers will still be able to access the Rim Trail from the South, but with no return via the North and no access to the Marlette Flume Trail. This route is essentially cut off from bikers during this time. NSP recommends planning trips to this area on weekends or to consider visiting a nearby park such as Washoe Lake, Dayton, or Van Sickle.

Work Days at Mt. Diablo

Are you interested in giving back to our trails? The California State Parks Foundation is hosting work days at Mt. Diablo June 11 & 12. They are in need of volunteers to help paint hand rails in a parking area. Those who help out are welcome to camp overnight for free. This is a wonderful opportunity to give back to one of the trail systems we utilize while representing NATRC's presence in the park.
